

Consultants Urge Expansion Of Eastburg Water System

$568,000

Outlay Would
Hike Rates

WATER RATES in East Stroudsburg may eventually be doubled if borough officials go along with recommendations made by a New York City consulting firm.

Borough Council's water committee is now studying the recommendations made in a report prepared by Buck, Seifert & Jost that the borough embark on a long-range project to improve the water system at a total cost of some $568,000.

No Decision Reached
However, following last night's council session, both Borough Engineer Edward C. Hess and Council President Roy F. Lloyd emphasized that the recommendations are still being studied and no decision has been reached.

At the same time, however, borough officials called attention to the need for improved facilities. "We have to improve both quality and quantity," said Lloyd. Mr. Hess explained that the report calls for a new water filtration plant, diversion works in the Michael Creek watershed, acquisition of necessary land and maintenance.

It was estimated that the revised rates would amount to about 6.027 cents a day for customers without outside connections, while 8.493 cents would be the estimated charge to customers having outside use.

Chlorine Blamed
During last night's council session, Water Superintendent Henry Lesoine commented that red-tinted water is turning up in various sections of the borough.

Lesoine attributed the condition to the large amounts of chlorine which were put into the water supply following the August flood. He said the lines will have to be flushed out to correct such situations.

The councilmen had another visit last night from property owners in the area of the proposed Thruway between the boroughs.

One of the property owners said he has written to Senators Duff and Martin, calling attention to the fact that Federal money will help to finance the proposed project.

He said he has asked that Federal authorities examine the proposed site to determine if the course would be economically feasible and would be in the best interests of both boroughs.

Fight Proposal
The spokesman said property owners in the area have decided to fight the proposal because (1) it would bring traffic into the borough at a "bad" location (2) it would destroy taxable property in one of the borough's "best" residential sections and (3) would make many residents leave the borough.

In other matters, Councilman H. A. Smeltz reported that a check indicates that it will cost about $28,000 to make repairs to the borough's flood-damaged playground.

Council discussed the possibility of seeking volunteers to do much of the work involved in the restoration of the playground facilities.

Eight Injured, 88 Jailed In Strike Violence

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 3 (AP)—All was calm tonight at the gates of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant here where strike violence flared this morning, sending eight persons to the hospital and 88—including 12 women—to jail.

Picket women Tadlock, 34, died in the early morning clash—of a heart attack, the coroner's office ruled. The union called it "murder on the picket line" and said Tadlock was beaten. County authorities said there were no marks of violence on Tadlock's body.

In the aftermath of the club-swinging violence which erupted from a mass demonstration protesting a back-to-work movement, there were these developments in the bitter strike:

The company announced that negotiations aimed at settling the 12-week-old strike at Columbus and 29 other Westinghouse plants will resume tomorrow in Philadelphia.

Snow, Rain, Fog Dominate Weather In Northeast

By The Associated Press
SNOW, RAIN and fog covered much of the Northeast yesterday, making travel perilous in some areas.

A band of snow, ranging up to 7 inches, reached from central New York to southern Maine.

Utica, N. Y., reported a snowfall of seven inches and Albany six, but temperatures of freezing and above turned the white blanket into slush at some points. Portland, Maine, had four inches of snow and Concord, N. H., three inches.

The area of rain and fog extended into Pennsylvania and stretched along the northeastern section of the Atlantic Coast.

Rain and snow and the thick atmosphere slowed automobile travel in New York State. Idlewild Airport shut down and La Guardia Field curtailed operations.

Eisenhower Completes Work On Messages To Congress On State Of Union, Budget

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower finished work today on two major messages to Congress and then exchanged happy new year greetings by telephone with the legislative leaders of both parties.

Eisenhower, still saying nothing publicly about whether he will seek reelection, informed the leaders he will have some business for them Thursday — his State of the Union Message outlining the administration's 1956 legislative program.

The President completed work on the message only this morning. It will be read in Congress by Senate and House clerks because Eisenhower, who in other years has read it himself, is staying on here for more sun and exercise until Sunday or Monday.

Hint of Surprise
There was one hint of a possible surprise in the message. James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, announced it would not be made available to newsmen until four hours before it goes to the Capital at noon EST Thursday.

That is a departure from procedure of other years when Hagerty distributed the document to reporters the night before it went to the lawmakers, for publication when they received it.

Asked whether the message this year would include any "major surprises," Hagerty said:

"I don't know how to answer that. I think I had better not discuss that."

After finishing the State of the Union document, the President and Budget Director Rowland B. Hughes whipped the annual budget message into final form at a 45-minute conference in Eisenhower's office.

The White House announced that the budget message will be sent to Congress Jan. 16. It reportedly calls for spending about 63 billion dollars in the fiscal year starting July 1. Spending during the current year is expected to total about that amount, too.

Ted Henderson Appointed Assistant Highway Engineer

APPOINTMENT OF Edwin Greenwald, Allentown RD, and Ted Henderson, Saylorsburg RD 1, to be acting district engineer and assistant was announced yesterday by Joseph J. Lawler, secretary of highways for the Commonwealth.

Lawler made the announcement to staff members at the district highways office in Allentown yesterday morning. Greenwald fills the vacancy created by the death of Edward Lobst last Saturday.

The appointments are subject to confirmation by Gov. George M. Leader.

Both Greenwald and Henderson have been employed by the district highway office for more than two decades. Greenwald's association with the office dates from about 28 years ago.

Plans Engineer
The new acting district engineer served as plans engineer during the administration of Gov. George Earle. Under a later administration he was made assistant plans engineer. He was serving in that post until his new appointment yesterday.

Henderson has been a resident of Monroe County the past 24 years.

Final Amount Raised Placed At $101,539

MONROE COUNTY Community Chest closed its 1955 campaign yesterday with cash and pledges totaling $101,539.31.

The amount is $12,961.31 more than the goal the Chest had set for its own campaign—an increase of approximately 14 per cent.

Breakdown Given
In his final report on the campaign, Clifford Gillam, 1955 coordinator for the drive, noted that $74,072.31 of the total was collected from within Monroe County.

The remaining $27,467 came from a special mail campaign designed to meet the needs of an emergency fund. This fund is to provide money for the extra burden of Chest agencies as a direct or indirect result of the August flood in this county.

For coordinator Gillam, Chest officials and workers in the campaign, the final total is a double triumph. Not only was the original goal ($68,579 in pre-flood days) exceeded on the purely local level, but the mail campaign was also subscribed beyond its goal.

Originally the emergency fund goal was set at $20,000. When the final totals were in on Dec. 31, the last day counted in the 1955 campaign, workers at Skytop, Pocono Manor and Buck Hill Falls found their drive had gone $7,467 "over the top."

Cooperative Spirit
In his official report to Elton P. Hall, 1955 Chest president, Mr. Gillam stressed the importance of the genuine and great cooperative spirit which made the campaign a success.

Hall, in turn, released the following statement last night: "Occasionally a community benefits from the inspired leadership of one man. I feel sincerely that this has been the case with Monroe County during the enormous labor which have gone into this Community Chest campaign."

"Without the constant, brilliant leadership of Cliff Gillam, this campaign could not have been possible. In each of his actions in behalf of the Community Chest and in all of his relationships with the hundreds of persons who made up the working staff of the Chest campaign organization, Mr. Gillam has set a standard for each of us and for the community."

"Inspiration was badly needed when the Community Chest began its drive late in the Fall last year. Our county had been hit terribly by one of the worst disasters in the history of this State. It was, I am convinced, because Mr. Gillam saw and recognized the desperate need for a successful Chest campaign that he agreed—at an hour when most men would have firmly declined the responsibility—to become coordinator."

Another Record
"Thanks to his leadership and the cooperation given him by all those who have worked with him, Monroe County has another record of which it may be genuinely proud today."

As campaign coordinator, Gillam released the following statement yesterday, simultaneously with the presentation of his final report to outgoing president Hall:

"The success of the 1955 campaign has been due, I feel, to three major factors. Each of these factors has been closely related with the others. They have overlapped and affected one another to a marked degree."

Fire Occurs Atop Tower

PARIS, Jan. 3 (AP)—The highest fire in French history today burned out a telecast relay post atop famed Eiffel Tower, one of the city's noted landmarks.

Authorities who investigated the blaze said it was caused by a short circuit just before dawn. The fire was extinguished after a squad of firemen panted to the top of the tower on foot. Damage was estimated at 50 million francs (roughly $142,850).

For years after the 984-foot Eiffel Tower was built at the turn of the century it was the tallest in the world. It still is France's highest structure, and for altitude today's blaze outranks any other of its kind.

Students Heed Plea Against Blue Jeans

A DRIVE to do away with blue jeans at Stroudsburg High School was apparently 95 to 97 percent effective yesterday.

Alfred Munson, high school principal, asked in December that all parents cooperate with the school in encouraging their boys to wear "neat, inexpensive" trousers other than blue jeans to school.

Response from parents was "wonderful," Munson said. Yesterday, when school went back to session after a two-week holiday recess, there were only a very few pairs of blue jeans in sight.

Munson said he and other school officials wished to thank all parents for their support of the suggestion and their cooperation in the matter.

Three Harvard Skiers Perish In Chalet Fire

MONT TREMBLANT, Que., Jan. 3 (AP)—Three holidaying Harvard students died early today in a fire that burned out the ski chalet where they were sleeping. Four companions escaped, two of them injured in rescue efforts.

The dead: Thomas S. Gates III, 21, only son of Thomas S. Gates Jr., undersecretary of the Navy, Devon, Pa.; Myron Timothy Herrick, 20, Brookline, Mass., a great-grandson of the late Myron T. Herrick, longtime ambassador to France; Jebediah H. McLane, 19, Millbrook, N.Y., son of Huntington McLane.

The blaze was discovered by Lawrence Coolidge, 19, Topsfield, Mass., who gave the alarm. Coolidge was burned severely in trying to help his companions from the building.

Youth Injured
Marshall Jeanes, 20, also of Devon, cut his wrists trying to drag McLane and Gates from the flames.

Others who escaped were David S. Lee, 21, Westwood, Mass., and Peter Swords, 20, of North Castle, near Mt. Kisco, N.Y.

The seven were among a party of about 12 from Harvard who came to this Laurentian Mountain resort 90 miles north of Montreal for a weekend of holiday skiing.

Earlier reports listed James Houghton, son of an executive of the Steuben Glass Works at Corning, N.Y., as among the seven in the burned cottage, but officials said tonight he had been lodged in another building.

Provincial police Detective Paul Filion said Coolidge was the hero of the fire.

Tells of Fire
Coolidge was quoted by Coroner J. T. Faillon as saying he awoke in the early hours of the morning and found a sofa blazing, apparently set afire by a cigarette. He tried to beat out the flames with a pillow but failed.

"I wanted to carry Tom out of the window, but he was far too heavy and I just couldn't get any leverage. It was horrible having to leave him there alone, but I went out through the window and around the cottage, smashing all the windows with a wastepaper basket and hollering 'Fire!'"

Second Quad Succumbs At Lancaster
LANCASTER, Jan. 3 (AP)—Carl Conrad Hohenwarter, died late tonight, the third quadruplet born to a postal clerk's wife to succumb since their birth yesterday.

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 3 (AP)—The second of quadruplet boys born yesterday to a 55-year-old postal clerk and his 25-year-old wife died late today in Lancaster General Hospital.

Mark Anthony, fourth born son of Norman and Regina Hohenwarter, died several hours after the passing of his tiny brother, John Philip.

Hospital attendants said one of the surviving quads was in "poor" condition.

The Hohenwarters had expected twins. They could scarcely believe they were the parents of quadruplets, born about four weeks ahead of schedule.

"I didn't quite believe it until I saw them," Hohenwarter said. "We had both expected twins. We have two boys already, Stephen, 6, and Donald, 3, but this we never expected."

The babies, all of whom were placed in incubators, weighed a total of 14 pounds, 7 ounces. John Philip, born second, weighed 3 pounds, 2 ounces.

The service has begun tests at its Great Lakes Naval Training Center, using a still-experimental vaccine developed by scientists of the National Institutes of Health.

The vaccine is a theoretically wider variety of an earlier vaccine which NIH successfully tested in two prison last year against one of the many different germs which can cause cold-type illnesses.

200 Recruits Volunteer
A Navy source told a reporter today he knew only that "a small scale test" of the vaccine was being made by Naval Medical Research Unit No. 4. He said the vaccine is being administered to "approximately 200 recruits undergoing recruit training at the center, and the men all volunteered for the test."

Last November, scientists at

NIH said they hoped it would be possible to "field test" the new vaccine on approximately 10,000 military recruits. So far as could be learned, however, the Navy's small trial at Great Lakes is the only one arranged so far.

Three APC Viruses
An Army medical source said he knew of no plans for an Army test of the vaccine.

The vaccine is one containing killed forms of three of the dozen or more "APC" viruses, the initials standing for adenoid, pharyngeal, conjunctival.

These viruses usually attack the adenoid, throat and eye tissue. They cause a rather severe, feverish, cold-type illness which, doctors say, "most people refer to as the 'grippe' rather than the runny nose, nonfeverish common cold."

Infections caused by the APC's constitute only one part of the over-all problem of common respiratory—or cold-type illnesses—which strike the average American six times a year.

Record Violations
NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP)—A record 12,577 driving violation tickets were handed out in New York City over the New Year's holiday weekend.

Authorities said tonight two persons were killed and 419 injured in 305 auto accidents.

Mercury Layoffs
DETROIT, Jan. 3 (AP)—Mercury division of Ford Motor Co. announced today a production cutback "to reflect current market conditions," and said it would result in the lay-off of 2,450 employees.

Due For Pay Hikes
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Labor Department said today at least 2 1/2 million workers will get automatic wage boosts in 1956 under long-term union contracts.

Contract Terminated
The Jacobs firm was notified by the GOP commissioners that the county wished to terminate its contract with the company. The commissioners took this action after they were defeated at the polls last November.

The Republican board members, said, at that time, that the voters issued a verdict against the controversial tax equalization program on election day by restoring the Democrats to power. And they contended that the latter should complete the job for less than $15,000 in line with campaign arguments.

Scanning Jacobs' final bill, the commissioners decided to ask that a representative of the firm meet with the county board to explain what amount of the assessment study had been completed.

The firm indicated that it has gathered data on 9,150 of the county's 20,000 properties. This would mean that about 45 per cent of the survey has been completed.

However, board chairman John R. Lesoine noted that work in some of the smaller townships had been completed, while little was done in most of the larger political subdivisions.

Suggests Thorough Study
Mr. Aechterman suggested that the Jacobs bill be "investigated very thoroughly," and that payment be withheld pending the meeting with a company representative.

In answer to an inquiry from Commissioner Willard Quick, W. Adolph Rake, the minority member, disclosed that John B. Aicher had been paid for his mapping services, which preceded the work done by the Jacobs firm.

Meanwhile, Henry McCool, chief clerk of the county board, said afterwards that it is possible that other bills may still be received for payment.

In other action, the commissioners heard from County Surveyor Edward C. Hess who reported that seven county bridges were washed out during the flood.

Hess reported that the State has agreed to allocate funds to rebuild the spans, including the bridge across the Big Bushkill at Hometown. The construction of this bridge would be the joint undertaking of Monroe and Pike Counties.

Alternate Bids
Since contractors must now wait as much as 11 months for steel beams for bridge construction, Mr. Hess recommended, and the board agreed, that contractors submit alternate bids for pre-stressed concrete beams.

District Attorney Detlef Hansen appeared before the board to request that he be permitted to maintain quarters in his official capacity at 20 N. Seventh St., rather than on the second floor of the courthouse. The request was granted.

In the afternoon, the board visited the county home.

Walter Asks New Survey Of Delaware River
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Another Army engineer study of the advisability of building three flood-control and water-conservation dams on the upper Delaware River was urged today by Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.).

Walter, who proposed the dam some 20 years ago, said he feels that recent floods and the continuing shortage of water in the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-New York area make a resurvey imperative.

The Engineers concluded that the first survey, made in the WPA days, indicated that the dams would not be economically justified.

"But certainly, in view of last year's floods and the terrific water shortage in the tri-state area, the Engineers should take another look at that old study," Walter said in an interview.

A resolution calling upon the Engineers to make the new study was prepared for introduction by Walter when Congress reconvened today.

Estimated cost of the dams was 38 million dollars at the time of the initial survey. The proposed sites, all north of Easton, Pa., are at Weygand, Mountain, Belvidere and Pochs Gap.

Estes, Adlai Entered In Same Primary
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver said today he would enter the Florida May 29 presidential preferential primary against Adlai Stevenson.

Four years ago the Tennessee governor defeated votes to 19 for Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia. Stevenson has said he would run in California, also. Kefauver has said he also would enter primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and California.

Kefauver in his formal announcement said "the election of 1952 demonstrated that Democrats can no longer take Florida for granted." That was the year the state went for President Eisenhower over Stevenson.

The dismissals, effective Jan. 15, apply to 43 employees under the commissioners' jurisdiction and two in the treasurer's office. Northrup and Wood defeated the Republican organization candidates in the November election.

Russell Sees Sharp Cut In New Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said today the State Department is "sterile of ideas," except for spending money to counter the new Russian cold war tactics in the Middle East and Asia.

Russell is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He made it clear in an interview he believes Congress will deal sharply with the administration's request for $4,900,000,000 in new foreign aid money.

"The State Department is so sterile of ideas that the only answer they have to the Russians is to ask for more money," Russell declared.

"If Khrushchev and Bulganin keep on traveling around the world they may succeed in bankrupting this country."

Urges Solid Front

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) called meanwhile for a "solid front on foreign affairs" by Democrats and Republicans in the new Congress session that began today.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) commented generally, and somewhat gloomily:

"I'm not happy about our foreign relations as things stand. The general situation in the world is not good."

Russell's announced aim is to eliminate economic aid to other nations. However, he said he was "well satisfied" with the Eisenhower administration's reported plan to boost the U.S. military budget to 35½ billion dollars in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This would be an increase of a billion dollars over the current year's spending.

Defends Foreign Policy

Smith, a Senate foreign relations committee member, said in a separate interview that Democrats will be making a political mistake if they engage in any "all-out, frontal attack on the foreign policies of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles."

"I am not afraid to defend our foreign policies," Smith declared.

He added he regards as "non-sense" recent charges by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) that Dulles has "played politics" by keeping foreign aid appropriations requests low while the assistance pipeline was being drained.

Congress Back In Business

By Arthur Edison

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Before the start of any game, it's customary to check with the coaches' dressing rooms for last minute words of wisdom, or reasonable facsimiles.

It's the same in Congress.

So before the House opened again for business today reporters dropped in on Rep. Sam Rayburn of Bonham, Tex., who has been a congressman since March 4, 1913, and speaker longer than any man in history.

Rayburn was inspecting a new book he had just received, the memoirs of a promising author named Harry Truman. Rayburn said the writer had said some nice things about him in an inscription, but that he wasn't going to say just now what Truman said.

561 Pages

"A big volume," Rayburn said, "561 pages."

Well, the questions drifted along. Lot of business to attend to. Yes, school bill up soon. Yes, a road bill, too. International scene isn't good.

What about the French elections? He hadn't had time to look at them.

"I've got about all I can do," Rayburn confessed, "with the elections in the United States."

"Time, Mr. Speaker," cried a voice from the rear. And Rayburn went across the hall to bang his gavel and put Congress back in business.

As it turned out, about the biggest business transacted today was the welcoming of heart attack victims.

Nixon Greets Johnson

In the Senate, Vice President Nixon officially greeted Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the majority leader. Johnson said he sure is happy to be back on the job again.

In the House, members were busily saying hello to Rep. Dan Reed (R-N.Y.), back for the first time since last Easter.

What with shaking hands with the recovered, and season's greetings all around, it was a little hard to remember that this is the session leading up to the election. And that from now on, they'll play for keeps.

Possibly the best commentary on the lack of excitement today was inadvertently supplied by Elizabeth Ann Miller, daughter of Rep. William E. Miller (R-N.Y.).

Elizabeth Ann, who will be 12 years old tomorrow, had a front row seat. Did she eagerly lean forward so as not to miss a word? No, young Miss Miller was calmly reading a book.

A reporter checked to see what she found more entertaining than the opening of Congress.

Elizabeth Ann was reading "Little Women," by Louisa May Alcott.

The Mongolian Peoples' Republic has been a Soviet satellite since 1924.

Record Number Of Deaths Occur On Highways During Two Long Holiday Weekends

By The Associated Press
A RECORD NUMBER of Americans lost their lives on streets and highways during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

The combined traffic death tolls topped the previous peak. The Christmas period total set an all-time high for any holiday period. The New Year period total reached a new high for a three-day celebration of the start of a new year.

State Reports

Comparatively Few Deaths

By The Associated Press
SAFETY OFFICIALS have attributed the relatively few deaths on Pennsylvania highways over the New Year weekend to a combination of intensive law enforcement and the sobering memory of last week's heavier toll.

Thirteen persons died in traffic accidents in the 78-hour period ending at midnight Monday night. This contrasts with the 25 dead in a similar period in the state over the Christmas weekend.

Seven persons died in other types of accidents over the three-day New Year weekend.

Press Fologs Laud Carlton In 'Bootstrap'

FORMER DAILY Record chief photographer Leslie B. (better known as Les to everybody in this area) Carlton comes in for a bumper harvest of praise in an official area photographers' magazine this month.

Carlton occupies the honored right-hand spot on the front page of "Bootstrap," the Mid-Atlantic Region newspaper of the National Press Photographers' Association.

Now 65, Les retired from his job on The Record in November. He had been with this newspaper 12 years.

The article in the "Bootstrap" comments on his career in this way:

"One of the most active members of the Scranton Press Photographers Association, Les will continue as vice president of the organization."

Started in Philly
"Les started his career with the old Philadelphia Press, then moved to the Ledger and then to the Inquirer. After free-lancing for four years, he went to work for Bendix Corporation as an inspector at the start of World War Two."

The magazine notes that Carlton was offered a job as an inspector by the Army, took it and was assigned to plants in Stroudsburg, Scranton and Carbondale areas. He came to The Record shortly after the second world war ended.

Program Offered To Reduce Deaths

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3 (AP)—The president of the American Medical Assn. today offered a four-point program to reduce traffic deaths and injuries.

1. Stricter driving license requirements.
2. Laws harring teen-agers from driving at night.
3. Stricter enforcement of traffic laws, particularly those applying to slow drivers.
4. Increased use of safety devices in automobiles.

Gov. Leader Postpones Mailing Checks For State School Aid

Funds Due Latter Part Of Month

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Governor administration today postponed until the last half of January the actual mailing of checks for state school aid.

More than 96 million dollars is due to school districts since October and November.

An administration source, who declined quotation by name, said previous reports were "too optimistic" that checks would start going out as soon as the governor signed a 561 million dollar school appropriation measure.

The governor, in signing the measure before Christmas, noted that new taxes were necessary to finance the huge appropriation bill.

Net Income Tax

As the House prepared to return to Harrisburg tomorrow, the administration was reported considering a personal net income tax—as possibly a two per cent rate—as its newest solution to the Commonwealth's tax dilemma.

State aid to schools and a host of other programs have been held up because of the year-long tax impasse created by Senate Republicans refusing to go along with the governor's proposals for a classified income tax and a manufacturers' excise levy.

The Republican-controlled Senate is not scheduled to resume meetings until Jan. 16 and is expected to act then on a GOP proposal to transform the defeated excise levy into a form of sales tax.

Democrats were known to be seeking a compromise on the basis of a personal net income tax, transforming the defeated excise levy into a tax at the distributors level, increasing the 5 per cent corporate net income tax to 6 per cent and speeding up collection of the capital stock tax.

Democrats In Philly

There were no conferences scheduled prior to the House going into session tomorrow. Most top Democrats were in Philadelphia attending the formal inauguration of Richardson Dilworth as mayor.

On the matter of schools, the administration source said the state has about 60 million dollars now in the treasury but is faced with putting out 20 1/2 millions for debt service next month.

Most of the debt service is for interest due on bonds sold several years ago to finance a 440 million dollar bonus for Pennsylvania veterans of World War II.

The source also said the Justice Department has ruled that it will take legislation to borrow money for highway funds. Previous reports were that the governor could borrow gasoline tax revenue without enacting a bill.

Await Word

Meanwhile, John Hertz, chief of school administration, said requisitions for state aid to schools are already written on the basis of 42 millions owed to Fourth Class school districts since last Oct. 31 and 54 millions for First, Second and Third Class districts owed since Nov. 30.

"We can't do anything until we get the word from the governor's office that the money is there," said Hertz.

Besecker Again Heads Auditors

MAHLON S. BESECKER yesterday was unanimously re-elected chairman of the Monroe County Board of Auditors, at an organizational session.

Mr. Besecker, now beginning his eighth term on the board, has already served 28 years as an auditor. Other members are Doris D. Smith and Mary Emma Teeter Garcia.

J. Joseph McCluskey was named solicitor for the county board for the next four years.

Mr. Besecker said the auditors started immediately on the job of reviewing records of the various tax collectors, beginning with Barrett Township.

George Hallet Heads Stroud Supervisors

GEORGE M. HALLET was elected chairman of the board of supervisors of Stroud Township at the organizational meeting of that body.

Harold Albert was again named secretary-treasurer of the board of supervisors and Jay Albertson, the other supervisor, was named manager and foreman of road repairs, buildings and operations.

Three Airmen Die In Crash

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 3 (AP)—Three airmen were killed today when a B-47 Boeing Stratofort crashed and exploded about two miles southwest of Amarillo Air Force Base.

The six-engine jet bomber burst into flames after tearing off a telephone pole while practicing blind landing approaches, according to the Amarillo control tower.

Names of the airmen killed and details on the cause of the crash were withheld pending the arrival of air safety experts, base officials said.

THERE'S NOTHING CRAZY ABOUT THIS QUILT—if anything it's one of the more inspiring stories to come out of the recent flood recovery in this area. The lady holding the quilt up for the camera here is May Coffman, 414 King St., East Stroudsburg. Her daughter, Dora Irwin, teaches in the Pine Plains, N. Y. school system. The quilt was made by fifth graders—both boys and girls—at Central School in that town. The reason: They had heard about the flood here; wanted to do something to help flood victims. So the pupils—supervised by their teacher, Mrs. Beckwith—began making quilts in mid-September. By December they had finished four quilts. They were sent to Mrs. Coffman with a request that they be distributed to families whose homes had been hit by the flood. Mrs. Coffman turned them over to Rev. Harold C. Eaton. Result: Four East Stroudsburg families will have warmth for the new year—from the hearts and the hands of a group of children.

Reminders Net $106

THE FOLLOW-UP appeals mailed last Friday by Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society yesterday produced returns of $106, and sent total seal cash to $10,016, about $2,500 short of the required 1956 operating budget.

Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive secretary, said close to 2,600 Christmas Seal letters are still listed "without returns."

The follow-up appeals remind persons who received seals they have made no returns or settlement for Christmas Seal's and appeal to those individuals to make some settlement either by mail to TB headquarters 621 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, or in person.

Because of the week-end holiday, some returns have undoubtedly been delayed, Mrs. Fleming pointed out.

"A daily report will be made each day for the next week to advise the public of the settlements."

Prothonotary Announces Appointment

N. HENRY FENNER, announced yesterday, shortly after taking office as Monroe County prothonotary, that George Garrison Shafer has been named solicitor for the office.

According to papers filed in the prothonotary's office, President Judge Fred W. Davis has appointed Harold White auditor for Middle Smithfield Township.

Judge Davis took this action after 16 townships residents petitioned the court to name a successor to Paul Cartright, who resigned.

Three couples have applied for marriage licenses in Mr. Fenner's office. They are Robert Edwin Felker, East Stroudsburg, RD 3, and Rose E. Seavo, Stroudsburg; Clarence Jay Neyhart, Stroudsburg, and Gretchen Ann Miller, Pocono Pines, and Charles William Goucher, East Stroudsburg, and Barbara Louise Garis, Stroudsburg.

News Travels Slowly

ASWAN, Egypt, Jan. 3 (AP)—News travels slowly in upper Egypt. President Tito of Yugoslavia on a state visit inspected a village near Luxor and an old woman peasant shouted "Long live the king, long live Nahas." King Farouk was exiled in 1952 and ex-Premier Mustafa el Nahas long ago ceased to matter politically.

details on the cause of the crash were withheld pending the arrival of air safety experts, base officials said.

42 Members Approved By Motor Club

THE RECENT Christmas campaign of the Pocono Mountains Motor Club was reported to have been satisfactory when a considerable number of memberships were bought for holiday gifts, Mrs. Cynthia Watt, secretary manager informed the board of governors last night.

Frank S. LaBar presided over the meeting held at the headquarters in the absence of R. LeRoy Dengler, the president.

The board voted to revamp the office of the club. Cabinets will be installed for handling supplies of all kinds and a backing will be erected for the show window. Frisbie Lumber Co. was awarded the contract for construction of the cabinets at the bid of $350. The office will also be redecorated.

Road Signs

There was a discussion of road signs along main highways obliterating, in many instances the scenic beauty of the areas. This is a big proposition to handle and no definite action was taken. The clear throughs were compared with many signs in Monroe sections.

The icy and snow-covered highways resulted in 81 emergency road service calls during December. There were 44 local and 37 foreign calls, costing a total of $316.50. The club receives remuneration for foreign calls.

A total of 42 new members were elected for December bringing the club total to 2,563. Those enrolled were:

Community Chest Exceeds Campaign Goal By $12,961 In Reaching $101,539 Total

"The first of these factors has been the generosity of the donors, many of whom suffered substantial flood losses—a generosity which was both heartwarming and inspiring. Several of the firms and individuals most seriously affected by the flood made gifts in the same amount as last year and many, not as seriously affected, increased their contributions."

Praises Labor

"The result could not have been accomplished without the assistance and cooperation of organized labor working with the industrial division, Barrett township, which made the first contribution to the campaign and the West End section of the county should also be specifically commended."

"Second, the determination and loyalty of the solicitors has never been equalled in any previous campaign as indicated by the number of contributors — 5,230 out of a population of 33,000 persons in the county."

"The sights of the division chairmen were high, but the accomplishment of their goals was attained only through the hard work of the men and women who made the hundreds of calls and who explained the work of the Chest and the requirements for the necessary funds to assure the efficient operation of the various agencies."

"Miss Ethel West, the Chest's executive secretary, and her staff were always available, worked conscientiously and accurately and were always glad to assist in any way possible."

Remarkable Spirit

"Third, the spirit of the campaign was truly remarkable. Dr. Peter Emmons, Jesse Flory and others set the standard at the kick-off dinner at the Penn Stroud when all workers were the guests of Mrs. Gerald P. O'Neill, Eric Schuchard and his staff."

"The greatest factor in maintaining this spirit was the work of Leonard Randolph and his associates through the columns of The Daily Record and Joe Webster and his co-workers over the air through Station WJPO. Their contribution, along with that of Francis Shinn, chairman of information, cannot be measured, but without their cooperation and initiative the campaign would not have been successful."

"This report cannot be complete without a request, in the name of all contributors, to the officers, committees and directors who will take up their responsibilities early in the new year to see that the funds are used to the best advantage of all the agencies of the Chest and through them for the best interests of all residents and others in the county."

"Please extend my deep and warm personal appreciation to all contributors, campaign workers and all who assisted with the campaign in so many ways."

Can't Be Surpassed

"I am sure that all join with me in expressing the thought that it has been an honor and privilege for all to serve this great county community whose faith, courage, fortitude and determination after the disaster of last August cannot be surpassed by any other community in all of these United States."

Gilliam's report to Hall included the following breakdown of totals pledged and received in cash in the various divisions and the special mail phase of the campaign:

Special Gifts (William V. Nixon, chairman) $20,775; Barrett Township (including Buck Hill Community Services Committee, Skytop Charities Chest, Barrett Welfare Fund and the Kresge Foundation gift) $12,750; Industrial (Emerson Stanton and Walter S. Peeney, co-chairmen) $22,508; Early Birds (Chester S. Miller, chairman) $6,866.33; County (Mrs. Claude V. Leister and Walter S. Wyckoff, co-chairmen; Mrs. Harry Weiss, West end chairman) $11,172.98.

"The number of contributions reached 5,230 compared to 4,237 in 1954 for an increase of 993 or 22 percent. The total of $74,072.31 for the county compares to $65,997.66 last year for an increase of 12 percent," the report continues.

Mail Donors

Contributions to the mail campaign were made in these amounts: Buck Hill Falls (Doris Meinweiser, chairman) $19,825.71; Skytop (William W. Mallison Jr.) $5,104.29; Pocono Manor (John M. Crandall, chairman) $2,537.

Included in these special mail contributions were funds from 1,848 contributors at Buck Hill Falls, 369 at Skytop and 143 at Pocono Manor. Many of these same donors had contributed very generously to the Red Cross appeal and other county flood relief funds, Gilliam noted.

The largest gifts in the special mail campaign came from two foundations—The Charles A. Fruehauf Foundation in New York City and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Foundation. Each gave $1,000 to the fund.

Response to the mail campaign was very large. Letters containing contributions came from nearly every state in the union — from Texas, California, Florida and others far removed from the Pocono Mountains scene, Gilliam reported.

An indication of the widespread appeal of the past Chest campaign could be found in the fact that one Easton couple—in Africa during the flood period here—contributed $100 each to the special fund, Gilliam said.

We handle every memorial order on a personal basis as we do all of our own work.

"Open Meetings" Policy Of County Board Of Commissioners Deserves Commendation

Monroe County Commissioners are to be highly commended for their first public pronouncement to the effect that they are "servants of the people" and that their deliberations will always be open to newspaper coverage.

The importance of this policy to the public is heightened by the growing tendency of many government officials from the lowest to the highest—and more particularly the high councils of federal government—to apply censorship and tell the public only what THEY think the public should know about acts and policies of government.

The most refreshing stand on "open meetings" announced by John R. Lesoine, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners should be an unnecessary act because as Lesoine puts it the commissioners and all other office holders are "servants of the people." As such their every act and all their deliberations belong to the people they are serving.

We hope the Commissioners maintain their "open meeting" policy throughout the four years of their term and that all other office holders, local, state and federal adopt and stick to a similar policy.

Censorship, whether it be through closed meetings of public officials, or whether it is applied in some more subtle form, always raises suspicions in the public mind which kill the confidence taxpayers and voters should have in our free American democratic system.

And the penalty for killing that confidence follows surely and effectively when voters cast their ballots at the polls.

Informed Citizenry Essential To Any Water Co. Purchase Negotiations Here

Renewal of negotiations for purchase of Monroe County Water Supply Co. by Borough of Stroudsburg through its Stroudsburg Municipal Authority is a sound move.

Acquisition of the water company property by the borough has many desirable features, but the negotiations must be predicated entirely on the best interests of the citizens of the Borough of Stroudsburg.

The question of value of the water company can only be arrived at with the guidance of sound banking and engineering advice. There's disagreement on the question of value from Chief Burgess Hal H. Harris, and we think his stand is commendable from the general standpoint that such disagreement will go a long way towards protecting the best interests of the borough's citizens.

Members of the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority, however, are men of high integrity and with a vast amount of experience in banking, business and industrial management. They have as their advisors an outstanding firm of engineers and an outstanding legal firm versed especially in municipal water systems and municipal authorities in addition to competent local legal advice.

Within this framework, the negotiations to purchase the water system should be carefully and completely explained to the citizens of the borough. Their understanding of the negotiations is greatly to be desired.

Any deviation from that attitude will injure the efforts to achieve the highly desirable municipal ownership, improvement and expansion of the water system.

Water, as we learned during the Aug. 18-19 flood period, is a priceless asset to mankind and a particularly invaluable requirement for a municipality. We'd taken water for granted up to the flood period. But, now, citizens are acutely aware of the necessity of an improved water supply for Stroudsburg.

That awareness adds to the importance of keeping them carefully and completely informed about the revived negotiations.

George Sokolsky Says...

Russians In India Counted On Front Organized For Them By Pandit Nehru

Since 1927, Pandit Nehru has had some association with the Communists. In that year, he attended the meeting of the League Against Imperialism in Brussels and was made a Vice-President. It was a United Front meeting, controlled by the Communists of the Third International. Upon his return to India, he proposed that the Congress Party join the League Against Imperialism. A year later, Nehru was elected, with Communist support, President of the All-India Trade Union Congress despite the fact that he was not a worker but an intellectual out of the bourgeoisie. It was because of this position that he had a platform to build his political power.

His close associate, Krishna Menon, was, for nearly 20 years in London, a supporter of the Communists in both England and India. According to Philip Spratt, at one time representative of the Third International in India and now an ex-Communist: "People change their minds, but Mr. Menon's recent speeches do not suggest that he has changed his. I should guess that he is one of that considerable band of people in important positions in the free world who, though not technically party members, are in fact disciplined communists. Even if this is disputed, it will be agreed that there is something anomalous in a convinced partisan of the aggressor masquerading as a neutral mediator, and contriving so regularly to serve the aggressor's purposes. I hope people will not think I am suffering from a conspiracy mania: after all communism is a conspiracy."

Philip Spratt should know because he was one of the conspirators sent from England to India for that purpose. His book, "Blowing Up India," which was published in 1955 in India, appears almost too late, because after having read it, one understands why Nehru got himself into his awkward present position by the disrespectful visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin to India. They acted as though they regarded Nehru as their man, a subaltern of the international Communist movement; they treated him with contempt and accepted the homage of his people as their due. He had been posing as the world's principal neutral and they tore that false face off him. Nehru is naturally embarrassed, but what can he do about it? The deed is done and Nehru has to live with the consequences of the Khrushchev-Bulganin visit.

Philip Spratt, long in advance of this visit, wrote: "Nehru has never seen communist politics from the inside; probably he has seldom bothered to read the communist press. For at least 15 years past he has been so busy that his reading on many subjects must have suffered. He has obtained his information about communism from fellow-travellers of the 'New Statesman' type, and from high-up communists, who will of course always have been on their best behavior. That he is really ignorant about what has been happening in the communist countries is almost proved by his amazing eulogy on Stalin in Parliament after the great tyrant's death. But Khrushchev and Bulganin were not on their best behavior and they did not intend to be. Smiles were for Geneva; in India, they cursed in good, old-fashioned Russian style. They used India as a platform on which to reopen the Cold War. Their attack was not only upon the United States, which was bad enough, but on Great Britain, which was worse, because Nehru is anxious to remain in the British Commonwealth and to have the goodwill of the British government and people. The Russians did not give any consideration to Nehru's problems; they hit his policies down as though he were a minor Mao Tse-tung. In fact, they never dared treat Mao as viciously as they have Nehru.

Some of the pro-Nehru Americans make the point that in his anxiety, Nehru would have turned toward the United States, had not John Foster Dulles spoken favorably of the Portuguese in Goa. That appears to me to be nonsense because any statesman in a country that is not altogether totalitarian to indigenous public opinion and Nehru has said and done too much for nearly 30 years to make a sharp turn in the opposite direction. That is why the Russians have taken him for granted. They counted on the popular support which Nehru had organized for them.

have better children and better homes. We have a lot of boys and girls who don't go to Sunday School and Church. Too many try to get by by cheating or lying. When can we expect of them. If in our own homes something arises between the children and ourselves, let us listen to them and then, reason with them. Let us not blow our top and physically show them who is boss. They will surely be grateful if we take time to show them right from wrong. Above all we must set the good example. We must remember the future is what we live for—what we make it.

Dear Mr. Heller:
A word on juvenile delinquency. It starts in our own home. If parents would teach their children the principles of religion and the Commandments of God, we would

Peace Of Mind Follows Knowledge You've Had It

What a sensible world this would be if we learned all the lessons to which we're exposed as well as we learn the few which have a physical as well as an intellectual impact.

Think of all the foot things normally intelligent people would do only once if the brain were sensitive to physical pain.

One thing I learned early in life was how it feels not to be a good ice skater. I remember it today as vividly as if I were still sixteen.

I can still feel how uncoordinated ankles wobble when you're poised precariously atop those thin steel blades. I remember very well where the muscles ache after you've slithered around the ice for an hour or two on the sides of your feet. I recall clearly the empty sensation you have while gravitational pull holds the rest of the carcass behind. I can still feel the pain at the next point of contact, and the jolt that travels up the spine to the base of the skull.

I can still hear the plunk of a skate nosing into an air bubble, and the warning crackle of thin ice. And I'll never forget the ludicrous postures your body can assume in front of someone you'd particularly like to impress.

These are good things to know—in retrospect. They tend to limit in some small degree the infinite variety of ways in which a grown man could make a spectacle of himself.

They also tend to increase his life expectancy by shielding him from concussions, broken bones and over-exposure to frigid weather. Most people who live where there is ice in winter admire the smooth, rhythmic grace of the accomplished skater. Many who never got the hang of it are tempted now and then to try again.

But they seldom succumb. The bruises of early experience no longer show but their feeling lingers on.

And it's comforting, in a way. Nothing contributes so much to peace of mind as knowing when you've had it.

There is solace in the thought that you are free to grow old gracefully—at least more gracefully than you ever could on ice skates. And that when you sit down you do it deliberately, with cushion aforethought.

Nobody suggests that I go skating any more. The youngsters know better than to ask me to teach them.

On cold winter nights I can sit snugly by the fire and bask pleasantly in the thought of all those people out there breathing frost into their mufflers and clapping their shoulders to keep warm.

No doubt the indoor man misses something in life, and I don't say he doesn't have his share of aches. But they're mostly mental and the suffering they entail is seldom aggravated by the smell of liniment.

Dear Editor:

In regards to the flood of Aug. 18, I would like to say we lost all we had, but due to the Red Cross, the Churches and the wonderful order of the P. O. of A. we were started on a new road. With God's everlasting love and watchful eyes, we were saved from drowning. Our good neighbors took us in their upstairs apartment. That is all that saved our lives. We are everlastingly grateful.

Eisenhower Making Atomic History In Budget Plans

Washington, January 4: President Eisenhower is making atomic history in the new budget he is sending to Congress. He will recommend an approximate $600,000,000 increase for nuclear purposes. This will give the Atomic Energy Commission a total budget of $1,800,000,000—the second largest since the establishment of that crucial agency nearly ten years ago.

That record budget was $1,152,000,000, which Congress voted in 1952 to greatly expand production facilities, particularly in the newly-developed hydrogen weapons and for power reactors.

The President will tell Congress his big budget increase is essential for maintaining the country's leadership in both military and peaceful uses.

The latter will be stressed in the President's message, as follows: "The budget of the Atomic Energy Commission for fiscal 1957 provides for greater expenditures than ever before on projects to develop the peaceful application of atomic energy."

Four far-reaching developments will be singled out by the President for discussion:

The "important progress" made in 1955 in the atomic aircraft project. The intensified efforts to harness the stupendous power of hydrogen weapons for peaceful uses.

The probable establishment this year of the international uranium pool for peaceful purposes which he proposed in his historic address before the United Nations on December 8, 1953.

The experimental atomic merchant ship he proposed to Congress last year, but which the Democrats rejected on the ground it would be an "expensive showboat." The President will indicate willingness to accept a compromise on this project.

He will also report that the U. S. is continuing to expand its mighty stockpile of nuclear and thermonuclear weapons of all types and sizes.

It is for this life-and-death purpose that the President is primarily asking for the $600,000,000 raise in the Atomic Commission's budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

This increase will make possible the continuance of a $1,900,000,000 annual nuclear spending rate.

That's been the operating level since Congress voted the record-breaking budget in 1952 at the request of former President Truman. Portions of that huge appropriation are still being spent, and President Eisenhower's proposed one-half billion dollar increase is to replenish this vital reserve to maintain the annual expenditure-level deemed necessary for atomic leadership.

Following is the significant record on that:

Fiscal Year	Voted Budget	Annual Expenditures
1953	$4,152,000,000	$1,791,000,000
1954	1,118,000,000	1,895,000,000
1955	1,284,000,000	2,050,000,000
1956	1,250,000,000	1,910,000,000
(Proposed)
1957	1,800,000,000	1,900,000,000

Note: The President's budget message will contain more information about the atomic program than ever before disclosed in this document. He will devote two full pages to the subject.

Fail-Out — More than one earth satellite will be shot into space when that epic experiment is undertaken. The number will be closer to twelve. Military and civilian experts working on the historic project have authority to launch as many as a dozen of the devices. No one will be surprised if only some of them reach the desired heights. . . . Secretary of State Dulles is considering a compromise on the backside issue of setting up nuclear training centers in Southeast Asia. Authorities within the State Department and Pentagon differ on where these vital centers should be located. Some favor the Philippines; others Ceylon. Dulles is indicating privately he is inclined to favor having centers in both of these countries. . . . Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, is planning to seek congressional approval for easing the bars on nuclear information. Says Anderson, "It is my considered opinion that the time has arrived when we should declassify all our work in the controlled hydrogen field. Never in our previous history have we been able to make progress by making secret the discovery of new principles and new ideas." Anderson is strongly backed in this view by two other leading committee members—Representatives Chet Hoffield (D., Calif.) and Melvin Price (D., Ill.). They point out, "Many other countries are well advanced in the atomic energy business. Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Russia and others. Everybody's getting into it. We haven't got a monopoly, and it's silly to act as if we did. If we keep that up, others will get together and out-monopolize us. If we don't watch out."

Capitol Sparks—Oregon is the only state whose two Senators are both tee-totalers and non-smokers. Neither Senator Wayne Morse nor Senator Richard Neuberger drinks or smokes; and the latter's wife, Maureen, as a member of the Oregon Legislature, voted against a so-called cocktail-bar bill in 1953.

In one out of every six families in the United States, either the husband or wife has been previously divorced.

Feeding Plans For Turkeys

—by H. G. Heller

Deep snows, ice and extremely cold weather could jeopardize Pennsylvania's magnificent flock of wild turkeys this winter.

It is hoped that, through the combined efforts of Game Commission employees and other interested organizations and individuals, the turkeys will find enough sustenance to tide them over the coming cold months in areas where natural foods are scarce.

Following established practice the Game Commission purchased many tons of ear corn which has been placed in large feeders in remote mountain areas where these fine birds congregate during severe weather. This operation is in addition to the planting of many food strips for wildlife in "hinterland" locations on State Game Lands during the growing months of 1955. The game authorities also purchased many small plots of grain located on private properties. This will be left standing as supplemental winter fare for wild turkeys and other game species across the state.

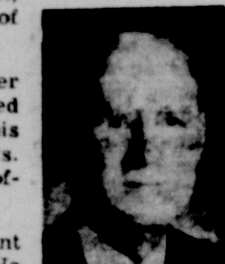

Tying in beautifully with the Commission's winter feeding program, sportsmen have in recent years contributed much time, money and strenuous effort in supplying winter feed for wild turkeys and other wildlife in the interest of their sport. Also, many farmers leave corn or other grains for game in winter. Boy Scouts and other youth organizations lend wildlife a helping hand when the need is apparent.

It is most heartening to observe that persons who were intent on bagging game only a short time earlier turn about and become wildlife benefactors during the critical months.

Farm Show Exhibit
Visitors at the Pennsylvania Farm Show at Harrisburg, January 9 through 13, will enjoy another colorful, thought-provoking wildlife exhibit presented by the Game Commission.

This year the central display will hinge on the theme of the exhibit—the need for more food and cover for farm-game species. Two extremes have been devised to carry the theme. One is a fence row with an abundance of natural cover used primarily for erosion control, in which live ring-necked pheasants, quail and rabbits will appear. The other is a barren fence row, along which mounted specimens will depict a predator destroying the exposed nest and eggs of a pheasant. In short, the desirable as different from the inadequate, suggesting the establishment of more of the vital wildlife necessities—food and cover.

My New York

New York—Things one New Yorker thinks about:

I thought I had a vague idea about the warped esteem in which the average woman places a mink coat, until I heard this week from Ben Hayes and learned I had no idea at all. Ben is the Forest Hills appraiser and auctioneer who conducted the huge sale of unclaimed and confiscated goods for New York's police department recently—and perish forbid, he reported, that he has to stick it out as long as a woman hunting a mink.

"The sale took three days," Ben said. "But the second day was the whiz bang. Things started at 10 a. m. in the lineup room of police headquarters. At first there were about 900 persons there—dealers and individual buyers—but this thinned down by evening to about a hundred. It turned out that a lot of them were just waiting patiently for a cerulean mink cape."

"It was bought finally by a woman who earlier in the day had posed, in a long-for-it attitude, for newspaper photographers. And do you know what time it was when I knocked it down to her?" A few minutes before 1 a. m.—and there hadn't been any time out all day for lunch or dinner. Another woman was there most of the day, went home, rested, phoned at 11 p. m. and learned the cape hadn't been sold yet, redressed, came back to headquarters. . . . And then failed to get it because she didn't want to go over $500.

Twenty-one may be New York's most famous restaurant, but I suspect that Hutton's, at 46th and Lexington, smells and looks the prettiest. Daily it's full of John Powers models, and a man can go crazy wondering where he's seen the blonde at the next table before. According to Midge Ware, one of the brood, most of them choose from a special "models' menu" originated by a 23-year-old Ken Sheresky, the owner, which is full of low-caloried items.

U. S. Rules Out Possibility Of Big 4 Talks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—United States officials have ruled out the possibility of holding another Big Four summit conference in the foreseeable future.

The behavior of Soviet leaders since the top level session at Geneva last July, informants said, gives no basis for thinking that a return of President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Eden and a French premier to the conference table with Soviet Premier Bulganin would be profitable.

Bulganin said in answers to questions published Saturday that a new meeting could be "fruitful" provided that "all its participants approach the urgent international questions with due consideration of the interests of all parties concerned."

This response to a question about the possibility of a new summit meeting was not regarded here as a proposal or even a suggestion for such a meeting. It was considered rather a noncommittal observation on what the results of a Big Four session could be if it were held under conditions that do not now exist.

Keeping Children Healthy Helps Lessen Their Extreme Susceptibility To Colds

By Dorothy V. Whipple M. D.

AP Newsfeatures

"WHAT CAN we do with that child, he no sooner gets over one cold than he comes down with a fresh one. I try to take good care of him, but something I'm doing must be wrong. Can you help us, doctor?"

Mrs. Smithers was an intelligent conscientious woman. I knew that she went to a lot of trouble to do what she felt was right for Sam.

Sam was three, going on four. He was a bright perky little fellow, about average size for his years. His nutrition was good, his bones were straight and strong, well covered with healthy muscles and about the right amount of fat.

Looked Pale
He did, however, look a little pale, his lips and his fingernails lacked the deep rosy color I like to see. (A blood count later confirmed this observation—Sam had a mild anemia.) The rest of Sam's physical examination was quite normal. His nose and throat showed no abnormalities, his sinuses (those that were developed at age three) were clear and normal, there was no obstruction in the nose. Sam's tonsils were rather large but they were smooth and healthy. He breathed with his mouth closed.

As I examined Sam's tonsils I answered the look on his mother's face. "No, Mrs. Smithers, removing his tonsils will not help a bit. These are healthy, useful organs. Sam is better off with them right where they are."

I inquired about Sam's diet and his sleeping schedule. It was pretty good, although Sam was a little over fond of milk and as a result ate less meat and vegetables than might be considered desirable.

Plenty Of Sleep
Sam got a 12 hour night's sleep and at least an hour's nap a day—couldn't ask for much better than this.

Mrs. Smithers saw to it that Sam was outdoors in the fresh air as much as possible, that he didn't sit on damp ground nor get his feet wet. She tried to dress him so that he was warm enough but not so hot he was moist from perspiration.

All in all there was mighty little one could find to account for Sam's susceptibility to colds.

I made some suggestions about the mild anemia. Sam should be permitted only three glasses of milk a day (instead of the 6 he was drinking). This in itself would probably increase his appetite for the other foods and cure the anemia. However, to increase his hemoglobin a little faster I prescribed an iron tonic for a short time.

Keep Child Healthy
While it's desirable to correct Sam's mild anemia, I had no expectation that this was likely to perform any miracle and eliminate his colds.

What's the answer? It's not too satisfactory but it's all we have. Continue doing exactly what you are doing. Keep Sam healthy, and in a few years' time he will have matured beyond the period of extreme susceptibility to colds.

Some children are more susceptible to colds than are others, but all little children are more susceptible than they will be later on. We build up some immunity as we live in contact with other people. Goodness knows these immunities are not perfect since we all get some colds throughout our lives, but most children have to live through a time when their resistance seems about zero.

No Final Answer
Someday we may learn how to give children a resistance to colds without living through this trying period. At present we don't have the answer. Removing tonsils, draining sinuses, helps only if there is disease in these areas. Pouring in vitamins helps only if the child's food consumption is not adequate for these factors. "Cold shots" at least in my experience, have little value.

HANDSOME PLANTS: Last week we told our friends how to raise sweet potatoes for ornamental purposes in the home. Today, we're going to tell you about raising oranges, lemons, grapefruit and other members of the citrus family. These items all grow from seed, making dwarf plants with shiny, dark green leaves. All you have to do is stick the seed into moist soil, keep in a warm room until seed start to germinate. It takes up to 2 months for this, and when the first shoots appear, move to a bright window and give lots of water.

Harner Takes Over As State Secretary

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3 (AP)—Henry E. Harner, 48, Harrisburg attorney, today was installed as secretary of the Commonwealth to succeed James A. Finnegan.

Harner, who was sworn in by Judge F. Clair Ross, of the Superior Court, in turn installed John S. Rice, 56, Gettysburg orchard grower, as secretary of property and supplies.

Harner, who previously was deputy Commonwealth secretary, was named to the post after Finnegan resigned Dec. 15 to become campaign chairman for Adlai E. Stevenson, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for president.

Rice succeeds William D. Thomas, Sharon, who resigned from the property and supplies post to run for Congress. Prior to being named to his new post he served on the state liquor control board.

Both Cabinet posts carry an annual salary of $15,000.

Marines Plan Dimes March For $95,000

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 3 (AP)—Two platoons of Marines will start marching toward Indianapolis from the east and west borders of Indiana at noon tomorrow in what is billed as the nation's biggest polio fund-raising project.

The March of Dimes, which will advance at the rate of a dime a foot is scheduled to reach Indianapolis Thursday, Jan. 12, with contributions totaling $95,000.

March headquarters in Indianapolis said similar military marches planned for polio benefit in some other parts of the country are considerably smaller in scale than Indiana's statewide march.

Route Of March
The east group of 15 officers and men will start west on U.S. 40 from the Ohio border east of Richmond led by Lt. Raymond H. Russell, Indianapolis. The west group will start on U.S. 40 from the Illinois border led by Capt. George T. Balzer, Terre Haute, who heads the arrangements committee.

The east group's 74-mile march will be lengthened to more than 90 miles by a side hike north to New Castle. The 81-mile march from the west will be lengthened to about the same distance by a side trip to Greencastle.

Contributions to advance the marching Marines are being solicited by veterans' organizations in a belt 30 miles to the north and south of the highway.

The marchers will be equipped to sleep in tents where necessary.

Shower Bath Temperatures Kept Constant

By David G. Bareuther
AP Real Estate Editor

MOOBY TRAP Shower baths—the kind that scald you whenever somebody in the house flushes a toilet and then freeze you as soon as the gals in the kitchen need hot water—are blamed for most of the 90,000 serious falls and scalds that occur in bathrooms every year.

This adventure of taking shower baths seems to be universal. We were reading in the National Geographic magazine the other day an account of trying to take a bath on one of the ice-encrusted weather ships stationed out in the middle of the Atlantic. "The stall will lurch suddenly, tumbling you into a soapy heap," the account said. "And to make it more challenging, the temperature of the water changes from cold to scalding hot and back again with each roll of the ship."

We were thinking of how many landlubbers run similar risks, even without drinking anything to make a bathroom roll, when—of all funny coincidences—in walked a young man from Chicago to tell us how to stop this nerve-racking aspect of home life.

"It's a thermostatic water control valve," he said. "A new invention. It will automatically maintain water temperature in a shower or tub at the point you set."

Then he went into his sales talk, which wasn't bad. "You," he said, "waste three or four minutes fiddling with the hot and cold water controls, trying to adjust the water to the right temperature. When you get it right, you step in and relax, but not for long. Someone opens a tap and the chill or scald turns every protruding knob and soap dish into a battering ram as you jump to get out of the spray."

"That's how you get bruised, fractured or something worse."

We believe it.

The only trouble is the gadgets cost about $60 installed, but that probably is a drop in a shower compared with doctor bills for a fracture. The devices are being made available through general plumbing contractors.

Another interesting development is a silent light switch that works like a radio dial and glows in the dark. You don't have to wipe your fingers on the wallpaper to find it. Merely a little exposure to light during the day is enough to keep it glowing all night. So no electric power is used when the switch is off.

One big feature of this type of switch is that you can have three buttons lined up on the same size wall plate that is used for one ordinary switch. Instead of stringing them out on a plate three times as big, these rotary switches have screwless terminals for quick wiring and they work on regular AC circuits.

Decorating Tricks Given For Five Room Problems

By AP Newsfeatures

THERE ARE TRICKS in all trades, say Sally and Sidney Liberman, attractive young husband-and-wife decorating team. But the tricks in home decoration can solve many structural problems, make narrow rooms look wider, high ceilings look lower, dark rooms look lighter.

Sally and Sidney have worked out solutions for a number of common decorating problems. These are things the do-it-yourself fan may try at home, when an unexpected problem pops up to shake his self-confidence.

Narrow room.—To make a narrow room look wider, cover end walls with diamond or domino patterned wallpaper. Wide points of the design make wall look wider by fool-the-eye trick.

Problem ceiling.—Papering a ceiling with patterned paper is a good way of covering up ceiling with structural beams. Walls should be plain color.

Problem windows.—Two windows almost meeting in a corner may be treated as one unit by covering the corner with a mirror. This trick gives illusion of full corner window.

Small room.—To make a small room look larger, paint ceiling a lighter color than walls, then paint all woodwork to match the lighter ceiling color.

Problem corner.—A ceiling-high screen made of building board will cover an unsightly corner beam or pipe in a room. Screen may be covered with wallpaper or painted like walls.

Home Office Helpful To Housekeeper

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeature Writer

EVERY HOUSE needs a quiet, orderly spot to keep bills, house books, recipes, telephone. Such a niche should be off the beaten path so that one can balance the house books, make up the grocery lists and talk on the telephone without interruption.

Houses are smaller and families larger these days, so few houses can devote a spare room to this "personal center." But there are spots that can be utilized for such a purpose if you'll look over your layout.

One family with a large closet built under the roof found it an ideal spot for a desk. The closet was cut in half and the additional space equipped with a desk light to offer a very cozy little cranny.

Another good place that few people think of utilizing is the space under stairs. This makes an ideal arrangement usually, if it is properly lighted.

Place For Everything

This little center should be equipped with things that are important but likely to become lost in a busy household, if there is no definite place for them.

Instead of throwing bills in the kitchen drawer, for instance, put them in the small desk under the stairs. The telephone books should be in that spot. Ditto dictionary, calendar, appointment and address books. An electric clock that will surely keep the right time might be on the wall. Into the drawer put stamps, stationery, pencils, pens, letter openers, sharpeners. One folder should be kept with letters to be answered. A remembrance book with dates of birthdays and anniversaries will be located easily there too.

One drawer could be given over to such things as new decorating ideas—if and when. Paint color cards, fabric swatches, tile samples might be kept for future reference.

Miscellaneous Storage

On the wall a rack might hold duplicates of all the family keys—

Panel Across Laundry Tubs Eases Chores

By AP Newsfeatures

A SORTING Table for the laundry is an easy project for the home handyman. The most space saving type fits right over the laundry tubs, is easy to remove when the tubs are to be used and provides that much needed flat surface for counting and sorting.

Simply cut a panel of 1/4-inch hardboard to fit over the tops of the tubs with a slight overlap all around. If the pipes at the faucets interfere, make a cutout for them. Then measure the inside width of the tub openings and cut four pieces of 1 by 3 lumber to fit loosely inside of them. Attach these to the bottom of the tabletop with small flathead screws or brads. Countersink the heads. This frame will prevent the panel from slipping out of position.

Finish this tabletop with enamel undercoating and glossy enamel of any color desired.

Concrete Replaces Wood Steps

MOST HOME owners are sadly aware that outside wood steps require constant maintenance, and are expensive things to replace in masonry.

Usually a set of steps will be replaced in brick or a form will be built and filled with concrete to furnish a solid set. Both jobs require a considerable amount of skill on the part of the home owner or a substantial outlay in cash.

Almost any unskilled person can build a substantial set of steps with cement blocks by following these directions:

Correct Dimensions

The first step is to take accurate measurements so that the exact number of steps can be decided upon. Usually, the number of block steps will equal the number of present wood steps, but in some cases the old risers may be less than the height of a block, or the tread of the old steps deeper than the top of a block.

Therefore the first essential is to settle upon the correct dimensions. When this is done, it is a good idea to make a rough drawing to follow.

The actual work starts with laying out a plain wood form about four inches high which is filled with concrete and furnishes the slab or the foundation for the blocks. The second step, after the slab has set, is to lay the blocks in regular steps.

Spaces may be left between them, to prevent any depth from front edge to back desired. The holes in the blocks are filled with wet, wadded paper and plastered over with concrete.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Seems that people are still finding it a little difficult to get into step with routine forward marching after a holiday in waltz-time. But the calendar continues to fill up to its normal proportions, and the people who remembered to get to their meetings seemed to have a wonderful time.

Especially the AAUW members who found themselves in the position of defending jazz when many of them had gone with the attitude of "show me." It's a meeting I'm sorry I missed because they were still arguing yesterday.

Any program which compels the audience to take an active rather than a passive role can be termed successful. I think you know organizationally that a real chore in presenting programs which compete with the ones people could see on television—and without going out in the ice and snow.

But it is in exactly this field of participation that television falls short. There are exceptions, of course. Times when the whole family gets into the act and the comments of the home audience is more stimulating than the ones on the screen.

But even at its best, however, there can be no give and take between audience and speaker. That's where club programs can really shine, and give people some solid food to chew on to supplement the spoon-feeding of pre-digested ideas and opinions we're so subject to.

Thank Offering Speaker Named By Local WSCS

Despite the fact that the first meeting of the new year for the Stroudsburg Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service fell on Monday, a holiday, there was a good crowd out for the meeting, held at the church.

There were 32 members and their guests from the Wesleyan Service Guild present.

Future plans included the Thank Offering Service to be held at the 11 a.m. service on January 15. The WSCS, which sponsors the service, has secured as speaker Miss Etha Nagler, missionary of the Methodist Women's Division of Christian Service on furlough from Burma.

She has been in Burma since 1952 teaching on the staff and later as principal of the Kingswood School, Kalaw, Burma. She has also served as missionary to China and Cuba. Before entering the mission field, she taught English, German and Latin in Michigan. She spent 20 years in China. During the Japanese invasion of China, she taught in Bethlehem Center, Nashville, Tenn., and served as assistant pastor in the church in Michigan where her father had been pastor during her childhood.

The program at Monday night's meeting was presented by Mrs. Roger Stinson and featured a film on American Indians and the problems faced by young Indians returning from college to the reservation.

A report on the brunch for college young people was given.

A special time followed the program with Mrs. Elwood Hintze as chairman of the hosts committee. Mrs. John Robertson presided at the tea table. Other hostesses were Mrs. Paul Shiffer, Miss Grace Dreher and Mrs. Shimer Kubic.

Jazz Idiom Discussion Gets Lively

A lively discussion was evoked by a talk on "Jazz Idiom" given by Wilfred Clelland of the college music department at the meeting of the Stroudsburg branch of the American Association of University Women at the YMCA on Monday night.

His talk was part of the double program prepared by Dr. Dorothy Luckner, program chairman, who as vice president also presided at the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Charles Albert.

The program opened with the story of a traditional American Christmas as experienced by Hans Vom Baur in a holiday he shared in a home in Moscow. The three-day celebration and the traditions, both religious and social, were described and he sang a Christmas hymn by Boris Goudonov.

In speaking on jazz, Clelland said that it is "definitely African native idiom." Jazz, he said, is not a conscious art form, but a playing with music. Real jazz is a performer's and not a composer's art form of improvisation on familiar themes, he continued.

While modern composers have taken from jazz certain new things, he said, their compositions should not be called jazz, nor should Tin Pan Alley music be confused with jazz.

The part of his speech which caused the most discussion was his own opinion, so designated, that the white man can not play jazz without loss of moral value.

It was an informal talk in which he encouraged his listeners to interrupt, either to ask questions about the recordings he played to illustrate his points, or to take issue with his opinions.

During the business meeting, announcement was made of the open meeting of the international relations study group to be held January 19 at the home of Mrs. Harold C. Edwards in which the controversial Bricker Amendment will be discussed.

Speaker Listed For Club's 42nd Anniversary Program

For their 42nd anniversary meeting on Monday, January 9, at 2:15 the Stroudsburg Women's Club will return to "old Philadelphia" and one of the foremost women essayists of this country, Agnes Repplier.

Taking them on the journey will be George Steward Stokes, Philadelphia author and rector, artist, musician and actor by avocation. Dr. Stokes is a member of the English faculty at Temple University, and author of the biography, "Agnes Repplier, Lady of Letters," which was named a Catholic Book Club selection.

His talk, "Our Best Bluestocking" will include amusing incidents from her life, many of which he learned through numerous conversations with the essayist herself. The program was arranged by Mrs. George T. Robinson, literature chairman.

The anniversary tea will follow the program with Mrs. Walter H. Caulfield, Mrs. Henry Hefele and Mrs. Carl C. Scholla as chairman of the hosts committee composed of past presidents of the Women's Club.

Family Lunch With Quick Main Dish

A main dish that's quick, delicious and nutritious combines green peas with shrimp sauce for a family lunch. Steam rice, fried salad, cinnamon toast and a beverage complement the main dish. Instructions for green peas with shrimp sauce follow:

Ingredients: 1 can (10 ounces) frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup, 1 package (10 ounces) frozen green peas, ½ cup water, 6 strips crisply cooked bacon, 1 can (3½ ounces) french-fried noodles, chutney.

Method: Stand can of frozen soup in very hot water for 3 to 5 minutes so contents can be easily removed. Place frozen peas in ½ cup of water in a 1- to 2-quart saucepan. Bring quickly to a boil, separating peas with fork if necessary to hasten thawing. Cover and boil gently just until tender—about 5 minutes. Drain peas, reserving ¼ cup liquid. Turn soup and reserved liquid into the saucepan in which the peas were cooked. Stir often over low heat until soup melts; don't worry if it looks curdly. Bring just to a boil, beating with a whisk or fork to make sauce smooth. Add drained peas and reheat but do not boil. Serve over hot cooked rice. Top with bacon in strips or crumbled and pass french-fried noodles and chutney. Leftover noodles may be stored in tightly covered container in refrigerator. Makes 3 servings.

Tempest In Teapot Has Capital Brewing

By Jane Eads

Washington — Capital hostesses are trying to solve what is purely a local problem, one involving protocol—the tempest in the tea—or coffee—pot. At some parties they have only tea, or only coffee, not both.

The reason is that coffee is supposed to outrank tea—even at tea parties—and the opportunity to pour it at local shindigs is reserved for those ladies whose husbands outrank others according to political and diplomatic protocol. Some ladies get pouty when they're assigned to the orange pekoe when they think they should preside over the java.

This has become quite the headache for some hostesses. Not only must they not seat an ambassador's wife at the tea end after inviting a senator's wife to pour the coffee, they must be sure to ask the leaders among the top-ranking guests to pour first as the party gets under way.

Thus, before planning a party, hostesses must study the official table of precedence of who outranks whom set up by the State Department's Division of Protocol. All official hostesses must do this in planning a dinner, or a reception.

According to the official table, an ambassador's wife outranks even the wife of the secretary of state, who in turn tops the wives of members of Congress. In timing the pouring stunts of those invited to take on this dubious honor, you'd have to have Mrs. Nixon take her turn before Mrs. Earl Warren, wife of the chief justice, and even before the wife of Norway's Ambassador Muntbe de Morgenstjerne, who is the dean of the diplomatic corps.

The vice president's wife outranks every other wife in the Eisenhower, of course, Mrs. Eisenhower.

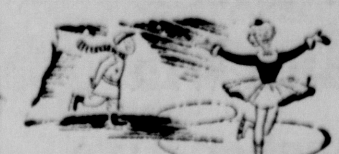

No one seems to know how coffee came to outrank tea here. The issue has been brewing and steaming for several years now.

Mrs. Knowles Again Heads Fire Co. Aux.

Saylorsburg—The Ladies Auxiliary of the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder held their annual supper Tuesday night at the fire hall in Saylorsburg. A ham supper was prepared by the ladies with the firemen and anyone who helped with the penny suppers which were served during the year as guests of the auxiliary.

Both young people are graduates of Palmerton High School. Miss Greenzweig is attending the Allentown School of Cosmetology. Her fiancé served two years in the armed forces and is employed at the R. and R. Toy Factory, Pen Argyl.

Merchandise isn't always easy to sell. Not even when it's fairly and squarely priced, as is our Wyckoff policy. That's why all of us think it quite a feather in the cap of the Royal typewriter company that at Christmas our girls in the stationery department inadvertently sold several typewriters for $10.25 more than they should have charged. If not one customer, but a number, are willing to pay even more than necessary for an item, it HAS to be good—and these customers recognized quality when they saw it.

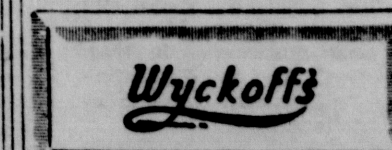

Not that Wyckoff's pocketed those extra ten dollars—not by a long shot. When the errors were discovered a few days after Christmas, a mad scramble began to locate the customers who had been overcharged. Fortunately there were shopping cards, charge accounts, and similar records to aid the sales personnel. As for the customers, they were utterly unbothered, but more than a little grateful when they learned that refunds and credits were being issued. After all, not everyone ended the Christmas season with $10.25!

As a matter of fact, the mistake was a perfectly understandable one. As one of the saleswomen exclaimed, "Well, what do you know! Whoever would have thought you could buy a typewriter like that for 74.50! I don't know why I thought it was $84.75, but I was sure that's what the salesman said—and it certainly is worth that much." As for the customers themselves—well, they'd been very satisfied with the higher price, which seems to bear out the theory that, in this particular typewriter, there is a wealth of quality for a very little money.

The typewriter itself is Royal's "Royalite"—a portable in a natural leather case. The case looks more like a small hat box such as a model might carry, than it does like the carrier of a business machine. Closed with double zippers that meet in front, this large "handbag" weighs very little more than the well-stuffed pocketbook of the average makeup-using, pill-box-toting woman. The typewriter itself is adorable. It is green (I am advised) though I would call it an unusual shade of rich gray. The keyboard and space bar are of darker green. The carriage is standard size, and operates on ball bearings. The typewriter itself is not plastic, as you might suppose, but a sturdy aluminum that will take a lot of travel and beatings through the years. If I remember correctly, this particular machine manufactured in Holland.

Florence Fredmore, head of our stationery department, tells me she isn't at all surprised to see them selling so briskly. "I thought something like this might happen when I talked with the salesman over the telephone recently," she says. "I ordered four, and he sounded doubtful. So I changed my order to three and he said that was better. I thought it was an odd attitude for him to take, until he told me he had to take my initial stock away from several other stores to fill my order. It seems the demand is greater than the supply everywhere."

So that's the right-royal story of Royalite. Remember it, if you need a typewriter that can serve you both at home or abroad, and see for yourself today what a gem it is. It's the perfect companion for any aunt you might wish to take . . . except, perhaps, your honeymoon!

Ex-Treasurer Of U. S. Robbed In Bank, Store

RICHLAND, Kan., Jan. 3 (AP)—Three armed bandits routed a former Treasurer of the United States, Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark Gray, 55, from her bed last night, forced her to accompany them to her bank and store, gathered up $2,000 in cash and fled.

Mrs. Gray and her husband, Andrew, a Washington public relations counsel, were left bound in their home. Mrs. Gray also was gagged but Gray, unaccountably, was not and his cries for help attracted a neighbor who freed the couple.

Mrs. Gray who served as Treasurer during the Truman administration summed up her experience: "They told us to do just as they said and they wouldn't hurt anyone. We cooperated."

Futile Search
A wide search for the bandits was unsuccessful. Richland's population 250, is 20 miles from Topeka and in the same county as the state capital. Gray said a man wearing khaki trousers and a zipper jacket came to the door of their home about 9:30 p.m. Mrs. Gray had retired.

"Georgia knows many people I don't," he said. "So I just told him to come in. The man stepped inside and pulled a .45 caliber revolver." Gray said the first man then called in his two companions. They aroused Mrs. Gray, made her dress, and while two of the men maintained guard over Gray, the third man drove Mrs. Gray to the bank and grocery store in adjoining buildings.

Opened Vault
At the bank, the bandit forced Mrs. Gray to open a vault, took approximately $1,200 in silver and then went to the grocery where he obtained $757 more. Mrs. Gray said she was unable to convince the bandit she was unable to open the main safe at the bank because of a time lock.

The bandit took Mrs. Gray home where her husband was already being bound. She protested that Gray was being roughly treated, she said, and the bandits placed a pillow under his head and threw a blanket over him.

Mrs. Gray then was taken to her bedroom, bound and gagged with adhesive tape. A few minutes after the bandits left, Gray hopped out until he aroused a neighbor who freed the couple.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, January 4, 1956
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—With this day's stimulating influences, you may be inclined to force matters and win by force. Be wise and tactful and you will gain more eventually.
April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Encourage vibrations from your planet, and from others, but be advised not to go to extremes lest you defeat your own purposes.
May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Worthwhile goals can be promoted today and personal achievement assured if you make the best use of your fine ability and talents.
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Some activities may call for extra vigor now, but this you can easily supply and greatly benefit thereby.
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Wish to develop new, better methods in your particular field? Then seek and heed the advice of those who are qualified to give it. You are clever and ambitious, but do not always know the answers.
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—A little extra study beforehand, especially on new matters, may be just what you need to get things off to a better start. Cut needless red tape, long discussions, get to the heart of things quickly.
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Your inherent patience, fairness and sound judgment will be great aids to your achievement now. This day may not be fully responsive. You must do your share to make it work.
October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Be modest as well as brilliant. One complements the other. Today offers fresh opportunities for making profits, and friends should help in many ways. Be grateful.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Don't fret if you don't seem to make records in record time. If you do your best without procrastinating, you will do well.
February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A general disposition and patience should be stressed all day. Unusual, if practical, methods to advance progress are favored.
You BORN TODAY are diligent, trustworthy, ambitious, usually powerful, so your initiative and energy may lead to aggressiveness and arrogance, now be watchful in this department. Never lose patience with children; their very mischievousness is what you often need to dispel a tendency to gloominess. Laugh with and enjoy the best. There is a wide field in which you can succeed; especially as surgeon, dentist, statesman; in law, banking. You can be an efficient worker in industry, farming, dealing in live stock.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Lawrence Confers With Clark

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3 (AP)—Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh met privately today with top Philadelphia Democrats as the party's selection of a candidate for the U. S. Senate seat now held by Republican James H. Duff.

Lawrence, Pennsylvania's Democratic National committeeman, avowedly came here for the official inauguration of Richardson Dilworth as Philadelphia's second Democratic mayor in 72 years.

But, though invited, his attendance was unexpected—at least to all Democrat leaders here but one. A reliable source said Lawrence came especially to talk to Joseph S. Clark Jr., whom Dilworth succeeded. The two conferred privately over lunch.

Clark-Green Feud
The best guess is that Lawrence came as a peacemaker, to try to patch up differences reportedly growing between Clark and Rep. William Green, Democratic city chairman, and thus avoid a bitter primary fight between the two for the senatorial nomination.

Both Clark and Green have been pressed to announce as candidates for the U. S. Senate. But neither so far has made an official statement. This silence is viewed generally as an effort by each man to win the other's support first.

Before Lawrence met with Clark, he kept an impromptu appointment with Green and Albert M. Greenfield, prominent Philadelphia real estate dealer and Democratic bigwig, in Greenfield's central city office.

Vote Creates New Dilemma For France

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst
The idea of Premier Faure that elections at this time would give France a more stable government, and the refusal of the last National Assembly to give him the election reforms he thought would help, have produced a shocking political dilemma.

The French people have registered their protest against things as they are by adding to the strength of groups—the Communists and the anti-taxers—whose chief objectives are the very opposite of stabilization.

Since the extremists always tend toward union, there is even the possibility of a so-called popular front government, of the type formed in various Eastern European countries after the war which ultimately led to complete Communist control.

SBA Announces Loan Plan Especially For Small Shops

WILLIAM H. HARMAN, regional director of the Small Business Administration for the Philadelphia area, covering the States of Pennsylvania and Delaware and certain counties in Southern New Jersey and West Virginia, yesterday announced a new program of financial assistance tailored to the needs of small shops, particularly in the retail, wholesale and service trades.

Loans can be made to small firms under this new program, known as the limited loan participation plan, up to a limit of $15,000 in Government funds plus a share from the borrower's bank.

The new program has been tested by SBA on a trial basis since July 6, 1955. It is designed to provide term bank-participation loans to very small firms—such as retail stores, repair shops, restaurants, dry cleaning establishments and many other similar enterprises.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Gen. Randolph McCall Pate assumed duties Monday as the 21st commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps. He succeeded Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr., who has held the four-star post since 1952.

A veteran of more than 34 years service, Gen. Pate participated during World War Two in amphibious operations as Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Palau, Iwo Jima and Okinawa—actions for which he was twice awarded the Legion of Merit.

While commanding the First Marine Division in Korea from June 1953, to May, 1954, the general was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by the U. S. Army for "astute military judgment and discretion in the deployment of his troops . . . during the final enemy offensive . . . initiating a salvage program of the old battle line positions which saved thousands of dollars . . . supervising the construction of new main battle positions and coordinating operations during the unprecedented 'Big Switch' prisoner-of-war exchange."

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden tonight rejected British Socialist demands for a full-scale parliamentary debate on the Middle East before he goes to Washington for conferences with President Eisenhower.

Eden's decision was announced after a special meeting of his Cabinet. It drew an angry reaction from Hugh Gaitskell, new leader of the Labor party opposition.

Gaitskell had made a personal demand that the nation's legislators be recalled from their Christmas recess earlier than Jan. 24 when they are due to assemble.

They must also show that their background will enable them to maintain simple records of accounts or that it has given them a knowledge of postal procedures.

There is a one-year residence requirement and all applicants except those entitled to veteran preference must be at least 21 years of age. There is no maximum age limit.

Complete information about the examination requirements and instructions for filing applications may be obtained at the postoffice in Saylorsburg. Application forms must be filed with the U. S. ## Evangelist To Conduct Meetings

EVANGELIST Larry McGill will conduct a series of public meetings in the First Baptist Church, East Stroudsburg, beginning Thursday at 8 p.m.

The meetings will continue Friday and Saturday nights at the same time under sponsorship of the Monroe County Youth for Christ.

Having preached overseas with the Protestant Preaching Mission to the Air Corps, in the Orient, on the Continent and in Europe, McGill brings illustrations from his wide experience as an evangelist around the world.

Schooled at the Moody Bible Institute and Wheaton College, he conducts the musical part of the services as well as bringing selected solo numbers, often accompanying himself on the piano.

McGill is quoted as follows: "We believe that straightforward Bible evangelism is the answer to the problems of the Church and of the individual. Therefore, we seek to present the truths of the Word of God as practically and pointedly as possible, trusting God to apply them to those who hear."

230 MILLION DOLLARS BUYS A LOT OF PROSPERITY FOR PENNSYLVANIA

Last year, our payroll was more than 150 million dollars. Most of these dollars were spent where they were earned and for the things all of us spend our money for . . . for homes and heat and light . . . for food and fun . . . for dresses and suits and hats and shoes . . . for haircuts and permanent waves . . . for automobiles and TV sets and deep freezers . . .

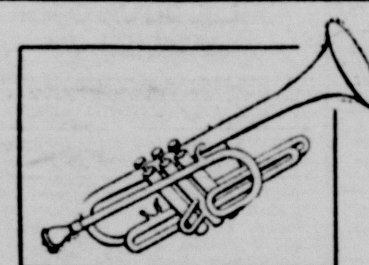

But that's only the beginning.

The company itself spent 34 million dollars for materials, services and supplies, every penny of it in Pennsylvania. And Western Electric, the Bell manufacturing and purchasing unit, spent another 46 million dollars in Pennsylvania alone.

All this adds up to 230 million dollars. In another sense, though, it adds up to much more . . . to good, steady customers in every Pennsylvania community served by Bell.

Any way you look at it, the successful operation of the telephone business means a great deal to the steady employment of a great many Pennsylvanians, both in and out of the telephone industry.
